THE undersigned have made extensive arrangements to supply the demand for these Ties the present season.

In addition to the FASSMAN DIAMOND TIE and BUTTON TIE, so extensively used heretofore, they now offer his ALLIGATOR TIE, with teeth so arranged as to silently clamp the hoop when the pressure is removed from the bale, and hold it rigidly in place.

Great pains have been taken to secure the best quality of iron.

These Ties are so simple in their arrangement that they can be applied by any one, to bales of any size, with the same facility and expedition as rope. In strength, security and facility of application, they will compare favorably with any tie introduced.

The advantages of Iron Ties are now generally recognized; but it is deemed not out of place to call the attention of those interested to the very emphatic recommendation of Underwriters, Steamboat Captains, and Owners and Agents of Iron Steamers and Sailing Vessels, recently published in the newspapers in New Orleans.

Trust Sale.

UNDER and by virtue of a deed of trust to me executed by Gabriel Choate, on the 1st day of November, 1864, and registered in the Register's office of Shelby county, Tennessee, in Book No. 52, pages 214, 215 and 216, to secure certain note as therein described, I will, on the

Seventeenth day of December, 1867,

Between the hours of 12 o'clock m. and 2 p m., at the southwest corner of Court square, in the city of Memphis, Shelby county, Tennessee, sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, a certain tract of land containing 53½ acres, situate in Shelby county, Tennessee, and described as follows: Beginning at the southeast corner of a 200 acre grant of the State of Tennessee to Charles D. McLean, thence south 89 deg. west 101 poles 10 links to a stake, gum, oak and hickory pointers in the south boundary line thereof; thence north 1 deg. west 80 poles a links to a stake, two gums and dog wood pointers, thence north 89 deg east 102 poles to a stake in the east boundary, white oak pointer, thence south 1 deg. east 80 poles and 3 links to the beginning—the same being sub-division No. 2 of J. H. Bateman's survey of said tract.

The right of redemption is waived, and the title believed to be good, but I will convey only as trustee.

THE WISE AND TRUE HEN.

It is not untrue, that "when God shakes a Kingdom or a Commonwealth, with strong and healthful commotion, to a general reforming, many Sects rise and false teachers are then busiest in seducing. But yet more true it is, that God then raises to his own work men of rare abilities, and more than common industry, not only to look back and revive what hath been taught heretofore, but to gain further, and to go on some new enlightened steps in the discovery of truth." If He permits this Nation to be afflicted with those whose presence curses the land like a pestilence, with the teachers of damnable political heresies, the High Priests of Anarchy and Misgovernments, the apologists for tyranny, and the apostles of a creed which subordinates intelligence to a brutal and debased barbarism, and education and virtue to ignorance and vice; if He afflicts the Commonwealth with intellectual and moral monsters, whose names after ages are never to mention except with hate and loathing, He also raises up the Great and Good men to whom He commits the work of reformation; men like SEYMOUR, PENDLETON, DOOLITTLE, DIXON, THURMAN, ADAMS, COX and EWING, who know that "though all the winds of doctrine were let loose to play upon the earth, so Truth be in the field, we do injuriously by misdoubting her strength;" who say, "Let her and falsehood grapple! Who ever knew Truth put to the worse in a free and open encounter? For who knows not that Truth is strong, next to the Almighty? She needs no policies, nor stratagems, nor licensings, to make her victorious; these are the shifts and defences that Error uses against her power. Give her but room; and do not bind her when she sleeps."

Law has too long submitted to power, the people too long been used by bad and base men as instruments to effect the most sordid purposes, even to the assassination of the Constitution. You cannot quickly and generally corrupt a people; and they are much more commonly lead in paths of injustice and suicidal folly by their passions than by their vices. They are now listening once more to the voices of the wise and the accents of Truth.

It is but a little while since those whose counsels the people of the North now begin to follow, could have said, in almost the words of CHURCHILL:

"Should imperious fate
In vengeance, with fresh Stantons curse our State;
Should Holtz, o'erleaping every fence of law,
Butcher the slave to keep the feuds to awe;
Should they by brutal and oppressive force,
Divert sweet justice from her even course;
Should they, of every other means bereft,
Make the right hand a witness 'gainst the left;
Should they, by tyranny precedents taught,
Assume the soul and claim men for a thought;
Still would we keep our course, still speak, still write,
Till death had plunged us in the shades of night."

It is not three years since it was unsafe to speak the truth to the people, and the Courts cowered before the imperious mandates of a Secretary of War or State, and Military Commissions were ready to murder, at the savage demand of a frenzied populace, and a Magistrate sworn to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution, ordered the writ of Habeas Corpus to be disobeyed at the National Capital, where the Courts of the Nation were in session. All honour to the men unto whom in a great measure the returning sanity of the people and the re-establishment of law are owing; to the Statesmen who have boldly denounced the miscreancy of licentious power, the follies of angry and fanatical, of factious and corrupt legislation; and to the great advocates who before the great Court of Justice of the nation have lashed with a whip of scorpions the military instruments of Executive usurpation. These men may say, in the words of the same poet:

"Let me, as hitherto, still draw my breath,
In love with life, but not in fear of death,
And if oppression brings me to the grave,
And marks the dead, she shall not mark me a slave.
Let no unworthy sound of grief be heard,
No wild lamegls, not one unseemly word;
Let sober firmness all upon my bier;
I won't forgive that friend that drops one tear.
Whether I've traversed, in life's early morn,
Or in old age drop like an ear of corn,
Full ripe he falls, on Nature's noblest plan,
Who lives to reason, and who dies a man."

[WESTERN ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORTS.]

NAPLES, November 21.—Mount Vesuvius is still pouring forth an immense volume of fire. Several distinct streams of molten mass have been formed; and as they press on in their winding path down the side of the mountain, the scene presented is magnificent in the extreme.

MONTGOMERY, November 23.—The articles of the Constitution in reference to the Judiciary, as reported in the Reconstruction Convention, provides that the Governor shall appoint all the judges of the several courts. Solicitors and Chancellors to be confirmed by the Senate. Magistrates shall be appointed by the Governor, but the Legislature may change the manner of appointing them. Chancellors shall be appointed. Registers and judges shall appoint clerks of the several courts. The terms of these officers shall be six years. The appointment of judicial officers is provided in order to prevent the elections being controlled by colored voters. The black delegates strongly oppose this policy.

An ordinance was introduced and referred, to assess a tax of twenty cents per gallon on liquors to pay the expenses of the Convention.

An ordinance was introduced and referred that $225,000 which was paid to the State in Confederate currency by the Alabama and Tennessee railroad during the war, be now repaid in good money.

At the evening session an amendment to the article on the legislative debt was offered to empower the Legislature at its next session to go further in disfranchising persons who participated in the rebellion and have not aided in reconstruction. Tabled by a vote of forty-three to thirty-seven.

WASHINGTON, November 23—Southern loyalists urge Gen. Mower for the Freedmen's Bureau, in case Howard is removed. It is thought he is too Radical to suit. The President has decided that after the Southern elections are over the number of military posts will be diminished, and troops concentrated with a view to economy.

The Herald's special says a majority of Senators hesitate as to the legality of the present session, and they propose to adjourn from day to day until Saturday, and then adjourn sine die.

A Tribune's special says Stanton does not desire to be reinstated in the War Office, but expects Congress to rebuke the President for his violation of the tenure of office law.

The friends of Gen. Averill are pressing his name for the War Office, and as he was a victim of the late Secretary, it is believed he will get it.

It is rumored that the treaty for the purchase of two Danish West India Islands has been signed at Copenhagen.

From the reports of the heads of the different departments it is understood that the expenses for the coming fiscal year will be much greater than the appropriations required for last year.

NEW YORK, November 23.—The Constitutional Union Mayoralty Convention last evening nominated John T. Hoffman.

The Board of Aldermen held a special session yesterday, at which a resolution was adopted requesting the opinion of the Corporation Council whether the city has any title to the Trinity Church property, formerly known as the Dominis Hook and Dominis Bowery.

The German Radical Republican Club last evening indorsed the nomination of Hon. W. A. Darling for Mayor.

A Hint for Christians.

Occasional retirement, self inquiry, meditation and secret communion with God, are absolutely essential to spiritual health. The man who neglects them is in great danger of a fall. To be always preaching, teaching, speaking and working puplic works, is unquestionably a sign of zeal; but it is not always a sign of zeal according to knowledge. It often leads to untoward consequences. We must take time . . . for sitting down and calmly looking within, and examining how matters stand between our own souls and Christ. The omission of this practice is the true account of many a backsliding which shocks the church and gives an occasion to the world to blaspheme. Many could say, in the words of the Canticles: "They made me a keeper of the vineyards, but my own vineyard have I not kept."

—A musical association has been formed at Little Rock, and officers elected.

LADIES' CARS.

We take the following from the Special Correspondent of the Chicago Times, in which it was published some weeks ago. If we are not mistaken, the Radical Organ in this city, a propos of the action of the Tennessee Legislature on the subject of Ladies' Cars on Railroads, boldly and broadly stated that such things as cars reserved for ladies were not known in the Northern States, and (we quote from memory only) that they were peculiar to the South, and an evidence of a low and depraved state of society.

The Special Correspondent of the Times, speaking of "entering the westward bound cars on the Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, at Watertown, Wisconsin," and of reaching Watertown Junction, said:

HOW AN ENTRANCE TO THE LADIES' CAR WAS SECURED.

At the junction, a clean, well-dressed man attempted to enter the rear car of the train, but was stopped by the brakesman, and told to go to the next car forward, as the rear one was reserved for ladies, and gentlemen accompanied by ladies. A merry twinkle was in the young man's eye as he stepped from the car to the platform. He walked straight to a robust and somewhat remarkable female representative from the land of the shamrock, and very courteously offered to assist her in transporting her bundles, which were neither few nor slight, to the train. The words, "May the good Lord bless your honor!" were the only ones which reached me; but it was evident that his kind offices were accepted. Then, after some conversation in an undertone, the pair who had so recently, and in plain view of Mr. Brakesman, become traveling companions, approached the forbidden car. When about to enter, the brakesman interposed his person, and directed them to go to the next car. The man insisted that his lady and himself had, under the rule laid down, a right to enter. The brakesman replied, "It is not your lady." The traveler, turning confidently to his new found friend, as he asked, in the most winning way: "Ain't you, my dear?" (The woman had cheeks like cheese-rind, and a nose like a piece of decayed beefsteak) Clearly and to the point, came the answer: "Shure I am, darlint." These was no resisting such proofs, and the pair marched in triumph to a seat, amidst roars of laughter from the passengers who had been attentive spectators of the scene.

We did not think the matter worth discussing at the time, but we can say, and do say, now, that before the war we were in the habit of traveling very frequently upon the principal railways in the United States, for some nine years; and that we have more than fifty times been turned away from a car, by the person in charge of it, for the reason that it was "reserved for ladies;" and refused admission because we had no lady with us; and this on Northern railroads, especially between Washington and New York. The practice began in the North; for it did not for many years obtain in the South, after we commenced traveling by Southern railways more than twenty years ago.

THE NEWS.

—The Nashville Banner reports that Gov. Brownlow has been petitioned to commute the sentences of John Nance, of Granger, and a colored man, of Hamilton, recently sentenced by the Supreme Court to be executed, but he positively declined to afford any relief.

The same paper mentions that a dividend of forty per cent. has been declared in the Davidson county stock in the Louisville and Nashville railroad, to take effect on the 10th of February, 1868. This will raise the stock dividend of the county from $300,000 to $420,000. It is stated that hereafter the dividends from this source, in favor of the county, will be over $25,000 per year.

One feature is to be that priests of every nation and language are to be constantly stationed at this cathedral, for the purpose of hearing confessions and of preaching to foreigners in their native tongues.

—P. G. Kidd, auctioneer at Lexington, Ky., reports the sale of Spencer Graves, on the 19th inst., with annexed prices of stock: Two year old steers, first-class, $72 55; yearling, thin in order, $59 60 per head; calves, $20 25 per head; hogs, $6 34 per 100 pounds; $6 per head; lambs, $3 25 per head; corn, per stack, from $1 55 to $2 25; hay, by the stack, $13 to $16.

LEGISLATIVE.

THURSDAY, November 21.

In the Senate a new bill was introduced for the benefit of the Metropolitan Police of Chattanooga, requiring the corporate authorities of Chattanooga to pay the amount now due, between $5000 and $10,000, and then repealing the law establishing the Metropolitan Police.

Senate bill making appropriations for the benefit of various railroads, was reconsidered and referred to the Committee on Internal Improvements.

House bill closing up the Claim Agency at Washington city, established by the Legislature of 1865, and regulating the fees and commissions of the State agent, was rejected.

In the House, Mr. Singletary offered a bill authorizing the Governor to issue a State Bond for $100 to all soldiers who were honorably discharged from any Tennessee regiment of infantry, cavalry, or battalion or artillery, which bonds shall bear interest at six per cent. and shall fall due at the end of two years from the 1st of January, 1868.

Mr. Hamilton, of Memphis, offered a bill to provide for a more prompt payment of the State revenue, by which the State Treasurer is to designate one of the national banks at Knoxville, Nashville and Memphis, as a depository of the revenues of the State, requiring from each of said depositories a bond with sufficient security in the amount to be agreed upon by the Governor, Comptroller and Treasurer.

House bill providing that real estate, not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres, and of not more than $1000 value, or personal property to a like value, shall be exempt from execution, came up on its second reading. The Judiciary Committee reported a bill in lieu, amending the present law so as to exempt real estate to the value of $1000 instead of $500, as the law now stands. After some discussion, the consideration of the subject was postponed until one week from next Monday.

Messrs. Hamilton and Cagle, of the Committee on Incorporation, made a minority report on the House bill to incorporate the East Tennessee Marble Company, a majority having reported in favor of the passage of the same, allowing fifty thousand acres of land to said company. The minority view of the matter is that ten thousand acres will be ample to employ the capital proposed to be invested.

GENERAL SHERMAN.

We make the following extracts from the speech of General SHERMAN, at the late meeting of the officers of the Army of Tennessee at St. Louis:

I have often been asked by my fellow-soldiers, when troubled by the reports of the disturbed condition of things at the South, whether, after all, our labors had not been in vain? Whether we might not again be called upon to repeat the scenes of 1863 and 1864? Or whether the rebels, defeated in battle, might not, in the hurly-burly of time and politics, regain their "lost cause" and their lost pride? On these points I feel no great solicitude, but whether I can convey to to your minds the same conviction, I will not say. History rarely goes backward, and events in the past are usually as real as the granite rock on which we stand. Surely no men ever had a more glorious cause than we. And never, in my judgment, did war so completely fulfill its natural office. When we laid down our arms and each man returned to his chosen vocation, not an armed rebel remained to question the National authority, and if perfect subordination and tranquility have not resulted, we must look for the cause in the nature of things, or in the civil administration of our Government. The former lays within my province, but the latter is not a fair topic of discussion for the soldier, who is sworn to obey the laws of his country, duly enacted, and the orders of his superiors. That questions of great interest should have resulted from our wars is to be expected, such as concern the rights of States, and the rights of citizens therein. On these questions you, who were formerly officers and soldiers, but are now citizens, should form and express your opinions as freemen, unbiased by the clamor of the hour, and should leave to others an equal right, bearing in mind that there is room for doubt, and that men may differ, and differ widely, and yet be honest; but when a conclusion is once arrived at by due course of law the subject is no longer an open question for discussion, but should be submitted to simply because it is the law of the land. Each and every one of you can recall periods in your own history, when you supposed those in authority were acting wrong; but by a patient, silent discharge of your own clearly-defined duty, you saw these doubts and conclusions clear away like a mist-cloud, and reveal to you the truth triumphant. So will it be in your civil experience, when a similar acquiescence in events will produce the same results.

* * *

The invention of the cotton gin did more to fix slavery upon us than any amount of prohibitory legislation, or any amount of anti-slavery agitation, so that I have always felt that both Old England and New England had much to do in fastening slavery upon us as a people, and should have a just share in the responsibility for its baneful result. Under these influences cotton became a power in the land. It was proved arrogant, and claimed to be king. It dictated its terms, and threatened war unless its imperious demands were granted. It claimed the right to go where it pleased, and to extend itself over lands, such as Kansas and California, not adapted to it or slave labor at all; and at last it rebelled, and set up a government of its own, whose very corner-stones were Cotton and Slavery. Nothing on earth could justify such a rebellion, and I only mention these facts in the past to show that others than the people of the South were partially responsible, and should share the natural consequence of their own acts. And I, born of Connecticut parents, bearing in affectionate remembrance the virtues of my honored ancestors, and yielding to no man in admiration of the intelligence, refinement, industry and thrift, of the people of New England, do honestly believe that they, in common with all the great North who shared in the original causes and enjoyed a large part of the profits resulting from cotton and slave labor, should be charitable and liberal in the final distribution of the natural penalties. If slavery, then, was the real cause of our civil war, or even the pretext for it, and if children must inherit the sins of their fathers, even in the third and fourth generations, then none of us who trace our origin back to the earlier days of this Republic can escape this mathematical and philosophical conclusion; or, in the language of Dr. Draper: "Guilty, then, both of us in the sight of God, let us not vex each other with mutual crimination, but bear our punishment with humility." How has this punishment been partitioned by the results of the war? We of the North have to mourn the loss of fathers, brothers, sons, and friends, and are burdened with a vast national debt, binding on us in fact, in law and in honor, never, I hope, to be questioned by any honorable man in America till every cent is paid. Look to the South, and you who went with me through that land can best say if they, too, have not been fearfully punished, Mourning in every household, desolation written in broad characters across the whole face of their country, cities in ashes, and fields laid waste, their commerce gone, their system of labor annihilated and destroyed. Ruin, poverty, and distress everywhere, and now pestilence adding the very cap-sheaf to their stack of misery; her proud men begging for pardon and appealing for permission to raise food for their children, her 5,000,000 slaves free, and their value lost to their former masters forever. How any Southern gentleman, with these facts, plain and palpable, everywhere staring him in the face, and recorded forever in the book of history, can still boast of his "lost cause," or speak of it in language other than of shame and sorrow, passes my understanding, and instead of being revived, I know that their lost cause will sink deeper into infamy as time more keenly probes its hidden mysteries and reveals them to the light of day. Now that slavery is gone, and gone forever, with its unhappy wrecks left behind, and all danger is passed, if any set of men again appeal to war when they have courts to secure their rights and redress their wrongs, I would trust our national destiny again to these grand old national laws which raised our country through the long, tedious vassalage of colonization; which carried us safely through the ordeal of our Revolutionary War, made our flag famous on the high seas in 1812; led our conquering armies to the gates of Mexico in 1847, and has borne us gloriously through four years of as hard war as ever tested the manhood of any people. Let us renew, as far as lies in our individual person, that system which Bancroft tells us guided our fathers before the Revolution, "the system which has been revealed in India; the system which combines and perfects the symbolic wisdom of the Orient and the reflective genius of Greece; the system conforming to reason, yet kindling with enthusiasm, always hastening reform, yet always conservative; proclaiming absolute equality among men, yet not suddenly abolishing the unequal institutions of society; guaranteeing absolute freedom, yet involving inexorable restrictions of duty; in the highest degree theoretical, awakening the inner man to a consciousness of his destiny, and yet adapted with exact harmony to the outward world; at once divine and human." This system was professed in every part of our widely extended country, and cradled our freedom. With such a spirit pervading all our country once more—with our population increasing thirty-three per cent. every ten years; with our national wealth developing in even a greater ratio; with our frontiers pushing back in every direction; with farms and villages and cities rapidly covering our vast national domain; with mines of gold and silver and iron and coal pouring out wealth faster than ever did the cotton-fields of the South, with 40,000 miles of finished railroads, and other thousands in progress—can any one doubt our present strength, or calculate our future destiny? If our friends at the South will heartily and cheerfully join with us in this future course, I, for one, would welcome them back, our equals, but not our superiors, and lend them a helping hand. But if, like spoiled children, they will cling to the dead past and shut their eyes to the coming future, I would only call their attention to that wave of emigration that has swept over our land from the Atlantic to the Pacific and must soon turn back and flow South. They may oppose, but their opposition will be as vain as it was for them to try and stop the Army of the Tennessee which swept the length and breadth of their land. The next war of Northern invasion will not desolate their land, but will fructify and regenerate it.

* * *

Go on then, I say, and encourage honest industry everywhere. Form and express your honest opinions like freemen. Discourage that system of personal abuse and detraction which has grown too much into a habit, and is a stain upon the national character. Frown upon violence, come from what quarter it may. Have unbounded faith in your country and its flag, and you will win for the Army of the Tennessee a fame in peace equal to that which you fairly won for it in war; and He who holds the fate of nations in the palm of His hand will see that your labors are not in vain, and that the glory of your country, for which you battled in war and labored in peace, shall not be tarnished by an insidious foe.

We may safely leave to History the task of making up the final verdict as to the merits of the Lost Cause; and the opinion of General SHERMAN will have little influence in determining what that verdict shall be. We neither envy or admire that obtuseness which cannot understand how a Southern gentleman can think of the cause for which he fought and his children died, without shame. We should have supposed that a brave soldier and generous gentleman would have felt, by the sympathy that knits brave men and generous gentlemen together, that a whole people, yeomen, gentlemen and women could not have engaged "with all their heart, and all their soul, and all their might, and all their strength," in a desperate struggle to maintain a cause, of which it was possible for them afterwards to become ashamed. General SHERMAN ought himself to be ashamed of the unjust and illiberal judgment which he has passed upon them. He has undoubtedly seen, since the war ended, a thousand Southern gentlemen, soldiers who fought against his flag, who have met him as equals, feeling and knowing that there had been nothing in their course of which to be ashamed; and if he has not felt it also, and met them as men who had no reason to shrink from the sight of men through shame, and on whom and their cause there was no stain of dishonour, he is only unfortunate and of none too noble a mind.

The passage of his speech which we have italicised, is the one single blot upon it, of which he ought to feel ashamed. It neither harms or annoys any Southern gentleman, that he rudely applies the term 'infamy' to the cause consecrated by so much blood and so many tears. The use of such epithets rather betrays a consciousness that the world is not all on his side; and that there are gentlemen of other lands who do not deem it any dishonour to have been a Confederate officer. Does he indeed imagine that Englishmen or Frenchmen think that the cause for which LEE and JACKSON and JOHNSTON fought was infamous, and that these great soldiers, every way his peers, and in some things perhaps his superiors, ought to be ashamed of it?

A word to our neighbor the Avalanche as to the expression of our opinion that General SHERMAN is the most available candidate whom the Democratic party of the North can select for the Presidency. That is our decided opinion; and if it should select him, and we had any right to approve or disapprove, we should approve it, because the salvation of the South in its imminent deadly peril can only come through the success of that party in the next election. It is not for us in the South to nominate candidates or even to say who they ought to be; because we can do nothing towards electing them. The Democrats of the North have to fight the good fight alone, and if they are satisfied of the conservatism of SHERMAN, and that his nomination will most tend to secure their success, we ought not to object to it. One great element of his strength with Conservative Republicans, (whose votes must be had to ensure the defeat of Radicalism), will be, in addition to his military services, that he has expressed the very opinion as to the injustice of the Lost Cause, to which our neighbour need not suppose that it any more strongly objects than we do. And we shall not fall into any error if we say that even among the liberal Democrats of the North that opinion is almost universally entertained. Few of them pretend to justify us, however willing they are to forgive. After all, if we demand that they shall do us the justice to believe that we thought our cause a just one, and that we are not even now ashamed of it, may they not claim the right, in turn, to believe and say that it was not just, and therefore we ought to be ashamed of it? How else can they justify themselves? If our cause was just, the war against us was unjust, and may even not unjustly be termed infamous. We must not expect to have the justice of our cause recognized by them. It is enough that we feel sure it will be so held hereafter by more impartial judges.

If it were for us to select a candidate for the Presidency, uncontrolled by any other considerations than his personal merits and public services, we should certainly not choose General SHERMAN. He would not even be our second or our tenth choice, nor would his speech, in that respect, in the least influence us. If he were acceptable to us, he would be less so to the people of the North, for the very reasons that would commend him to us. We are opposed to elevating Generals to the Presidency, and if we could choose, should not select the one who burned Columbia and exiled the women and children of Atlanta, and ravaged Georgia and South Carolina. But he did make that Convention with JOHNSTON, which, if it had been confirmed by ANDREW JOHNSON, would have restored the Union and given peace to the country and a chance for renewed prosperity to the South, and have saved us from the bitter curse of negro suffrage; and for that we may forgive him much that he ought not to have done. At all events, if GRANT is the Radical candidate, SHERMAN alone, we believe, can defeat him.

JACKSON, NOV. 23.—In the Supreme Court to-day, in the case of Henry Lyon vs. R. M. Mason, decree of Chancellor was affirmed. Argument commenced in the case of Blackwell vs. Blackwell.

[WESTERN ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORTS.]

NEW ORLEANS, November 23.—The Republican of this morning has an editorial headed, "Who is Responsible?" Alluding to the suspension of Mower's removals by an order from Washington, the following language is used: "The day will come, and perhaps it may be a bloody one, when the loyal people of Louisiana will hold the authors of this interference in the progress of reconstruction to a strict account. The war of the rebellion is not yet over. The States of the South are not yet reconstructed. The 'Grand Army of the Republic' doubles in numbers the old Grand Army of the Potomac. Tried soldiers, with dusky faces, still love their old profession, and cherish the old muskets they carried so bravely on many a well fought field. The lowly and humble have learned their rights, and know how to fight, and if need be, to die for them. No power save that of the Almighty God, can keep the loyal people in the end from achieving their own liberty and trampling in the dust the minions of the old and still dominant slave power.

The same article calls Andrew Johnson that arch traitor and assassin.

The Constitutional Convention met to day. Negroes were elected temporary Chairman and Secretary. No permanent organization arrived at. Adjourned till Monday.

Forty-four negroes and twenty-five whites were present. In the caucus Judge Taliaferro seemed to be the choice for permanent chairman, but probably the negroes will elect one of their own color.

It was resolved in caucus last night that the first step of the Convention would be to declare all State offices vacant, and fill them with appointees acceptable to the Radical party. The recent appointees by Mower are probably black enough for the Convention.

Dr. Avery, the newly appointed sheriff, is in quiet possession. He swore in most of the old deputies, and the Courts proceeded to business which had been interrupted by the late confusion.

NEW YORK, November 23.—Washington specials state that Attorney General Underwood has expressed the opinion that Surratt cannot again be legally tried for complicity in the assassination of Lincoln. A new indictment may be drawn, but more likely the prisoner will be released by direction of Congress.

It is reported that Grant will reduce the number of military posts in the South, and concentrate troops at points where they can be more economically supplied, as soon as the several Constitutional Conventions shall finish their labors.

RICHMOND, November 23.—Jefferson Davis' trial will commence Monday, at 11 p.m. It is believed that he will be called from day to day on his own recognizance. About fifteen witnesses are summoned for the Government, including Joseph E. Johnston and James A. Selden. Chief Justice Chase and Judge Underwood will arrive on Monday. Chandler and Evarts, of the prosecution, and O'Connor and Shea, of the defense, will arrive to-morrow. It is believed that the Grand Jury here will present a new bill of indictment.

WILMINGTON, DEL., November 22.—The Daily Council, of this city says that ten men—six black and four white—were lashed at New Castle to-day, in the presence of a large crowd of men, boys and girls. This morning five men were pilloried.

LOUISVILLE, November 23.—River falling with three feet in the canal. Weather warm.

FOREIGN.

LONDON, November 23.—The Pope has signified his consent to a settlement of the Italian question by a general conference; also the Government of Bavaria; also Italy and Wurtemberg. Details of the conference have already been agreed upon, and Munich named as the place of holding it.

MANCHESTER, November 23.—The condemned Fenians Allen, Larkin and Gould suffered the extreme penalty of the law to-day. The precautions taken by the government to prevent an outbreak were sufficient. The crowd that witnessed the execution was large, notwithstanding unfavorable weather. The city is perfectly quiet.

WASHINGTON, November 23.—The amount of fractional currency issued from the Printing bureau for the week was $544,000; shipments $351,000; National bank currency issued, $49,129; fractional currency destroyed $572,846.

The receipts from Internal Revenue for the week was $2,114,000; total since July $8,200,000.

FUNERAL NOTICE.

The friends and acquaintances of W. F. and J. E. Boyle are invited to attend the funeral of their infant daughter MARTHA, from the residence of Mrs. W. R. McClelland, No. 114 Monroe street, This (Sunday) afternoon at 3 o'clock.

IN MEMORIAM.

Miss Dosha Irene Dowdy.

"Soft as the memory of buried love,
Pure as the prayer which childhood wafts above,
Was she—the loved and lost IRENE."

"——Her spirit grew faint for undying waters; then came to the pure fount of God, and is athirst no more forever."

Died, at the residence of her father, in the city of Memphis, on the 20th October, of yellow fever, Miss DOSHA IRENE LOWDY, eldest daughter of Col. Joseph F. and Mrs. Mary Jane Dowdy.

Born at Granger Hill, Marshall county, Miss., on the 3d November, 1846, this beloved and widely lamented young lady was within a week of her twenty-first birthday at the time of her demise. Her education, which was completed in Memphis, had invested her a fond and liberal father, seconded by her own quick and versatile intellect, could make it. Especially had she accomplished herself in all useful branches and in music, to which she was passionately devoted, and had become a most skillful performer on the piano, which she accompanied with a voice of rare compass and sweetness. For twelve months preceding the advent of the fatal epidemic which carried her off, she taught a Sabbath school class at the Christian Church in Memphis. Most truly was it said of her, by those who best knew her: "She was the light and life of her parents' fireside, 'the angel of the household,' and the prime favorite of a large circle of attached friends and devoted admirers."

The papers and scrap-books, and all the letters she left behind, show that she possessed a mind of singular brilliancy and power, with a heart full of all womanly loveliness, and running over with affection for the dear friends and relatives by whom she was surrounded, and who reciprocated her attachment with an ardor beautiful to behold, and which marked an oasis—a "diamond of the desert"—in the dreary times in which we live. Modest and retiring, she retained the freshness and purity of early childhood to the last; and when the dread summons came, the anguish of those dear ones from whom she was about to be separated forever, could be mitigated alone by the quick-recurring thought that their loss was sure to be her eternal gain, and the ever present consolation of the truly believing Christian: "Our loved and lost may not return to us, but we may, and, by God's blessing, WE WILL GO TO THEM!"

The sadness, the agony of that death-bed scene, all-hallowed as it was by the ministering love of kindred and friends and the blessed consolations of our holy religion, may not be fitly described here. Her deeply smitten father, rising from a sick-bed, came into the death-chamber to bid adieu to the idolized child he had cherished so long and well, and his great grief wrenched from his doting heart the exclamation: "The best, the purest human being that ever graced the earth—that ever filled a father's heart with pride and joy—is about to leave us forever; and well may the angels in Heaven sing together for joy to see her coming!" The weeping mother and the rest of that fond family, with many loving friends, all bathed in tears and rent with a grief that could no longer be suppressed, were gathered around to bid farewell to the fair truant from the skies about returning home. And there, too, faithful unto death, stood the mammy and devoted soldier to whom her troth had been plighted, and to whom, but for this sad summons, she would have been united in a few short days in the pure bonds of holy wedlock. Surely, there can be no greater, no sweeter earthly solace, in the hour of death, than to have with us, hand clasped in hand, the one that in life we have loved the best. A gallant Colonel of the late Confederate Army, in the Corps of FORREST, this young officer had, while battling for a COUNTRY, faced death on a hundred stricken fields; but never had the grim King come near him in guise so terrible, as, when standing by this dying bed, he saw him lay his icy hand upon the dear young heart that beat so truly for him, stilling its warm pulses forever, and rending from his embrace the beauteous form so soon to have been his in that union of the soul which makes up the whole sum of earthly bliss. Alas! the cypress and myrtle must take the place of the orange wreath and the bridal flowers; the funeral dirge, solemn and slow, will sound the marriage-bells we were so appointed; and the fair young bride must be laid away in the cold and silent tomb. But—blessed be the hope, the trust, the glorious certainty, which a pure life and a Christian faith ever vouchsafe to bereaved ones here below—while the body sinks under the stroke of Death, the enfranchised spirit begins to wing its flight to fairer realms beyond the skies, whi her it should be the lifelong care of those who are left behind, to be ever ready, at a moment's notice, to follow, on the sanc almighty pinions of Faith and Hope and God's eternal Love!

Rev. Dr. JONES, who read the burial services for the early dead, and administered the consolations of the Church to the living, when, a few days later, the remains were consigned to the vault at Elmwood Cemetery. To the bereaved and sorrowing father and mother: "Mother, dry your eyes and raise them to Heaven, for, look, you are the mother of an angel!"

The happy home that has thus been inexpressibly saddened by the departure of its best beloved to the better land, may not be darkened for long. When the first sharp bitterness of grief is passed, the deathless memory of her brilliant virtues, her noble intellect, her snow-white name, and countless good deeds, must take the place of mourning, and dry the eyes of weeping. These priceless mementoes constitute a treasure now forever safe—a gem of price whose radiance death has no power to dim; an immortal heritage that cannot be wrested, and which her family and friends, and her promised husband, may enjoy forever.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

OFFICE OF THE DAILY APPEAL,
MEMPHIS, November 23, 1867.

Owing to the depression in the cotton market, and the well known torpidity of our market, so far as the staple is concerned, on Saturday, there were fewer bills offered than usual at our banks to-day. Buying rates are the same as yesterday—the same, in fact, as they are likely to be for weeks, and the same as they are likely to be for some time to come, without our supply of currency is much improved from some source not yet discovered. The selling rates, owing to improved demand, are stiffer and have advanced to par.

In coin there is almost nothing doing. The offerings of gold and silver are so light and fitful takes so long to make up a shipment, together with the state of the exchange market, all combine to keep a large margin on New York quotations. Ie during the early part of the season fatirue was all that a shipper wanted, but now few was all that a shipper wanted, but now few purchase at less than 2c margin to cover all contingencies. The New York market opened to-day at 1.29⅝, and closed at 1.30. Here dealers bought at 1.37 to 1.37½ for gold, and 128 for silver.

City scrip is in demand, but there is less call for it than early in the week. Dealers buy at 44 to 45c, and sell at 45 to 46c, though some hold higher.

County Warrants are less active than for a few days back, but there is still a good demand for small pieces Brokers buy at 67 to 70c and sell at 72 to 75c.

A small lot of Police Scrip would sell at 80c, but the offering rate is 78c. Selling at 82.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has recently made the following decisions which will be found of much importance to business men and the public generally:

When a conveyance of realty is made upon actual valuable consideration, which is manifestly inadequate, the deed should be stamped according to the amount of valuable consideration, and a succession tax, unless the successor be the wife of the predecessor, should be assessed upon the value of land conveyed, less such consideration.

Where there is no stamp upon a promissory note until it is issued, a stamp is to be canceled when it is attached or used; and although a stamp may be affixed when a note is signed, it cannot be said to be used until the note is issued.

A check, draft, or order for the payment of a sum of money drawn otherwise than at sight, or on demand, is liable to stamp tax at the rate of five cents for each one hundred dollars, or fractional part thereof.

A receipt for a bank check is a receipt for money within the terms of the Internal Revenue Act, and if for a sum exceeding twenty dollars, requires a two cent stamp, and is not relieved by the stamp upon the check.

The regular monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce takes place on Monday next. In our local columns will be found a brief summary of the importance of a full attendance of members.

The Liverpool opening dispatch of this morning quoted that market heavy, with uplands 8½d; Orleans, 8½d, and at 2 p.m. was quiet, but firm, with prices nominally unchanged. Sales for the day, 10,000 bales.

In New York the opening dispatch quoted small transactions, and prices declining—Middling, 17¾ to 17¾c; Mobile, 17¾c; Orleans, 18¼c. At noon the market was dull and nominally unchanged, and at the closing there was a moderate demand and prices weak. Sales for the day, 1,250 bales; week's sales, 19,000 bales. Receipts for the week, 24,000 bales. Exports, 10,000 and stock 350,000 bales. There was some inquiry here, but at such figures as would not be entertained except by a few sellers. The majority kept their samples out of sight. Sales were made, however, at irregular prices and with those who did sell, buyers made their own terms. There is a fair demand for low grades, and they hold their own better than Middling's, but all had to give way under the unfavorable news.

We quote our market inactive and weak:

The general markets were much the same as yesterday, with probably some improvement in the aggregate sale of trade. Meats are stiffer, though not higher, except in clear sides, which are possibly ½c over yesterday's figures. It is held to-day at 16@16½c in lots of 5 to 10 casks, and jobbing to the country at 16¾ to 17c. Mess pork is in moderate supply and held at $22 (10 to 23 in store, and $22 to 22 25 by the car load from cooming in daily, selling at 14½@15c; bulk shoulders, 11@11½c; bacon shoulders, 12¼@13½c; plain sugar cured hams, 20@22c; canvassed, 24@26c. THE DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.
NO material which has ever been discovered has effected greater benefits in the household economy than McGIMSEY'S MAGIC SOAP.
It is a labor saving invention, as well as an invaluable remedy in Scurvy, Scald Head, Eruptions of the Skin and Piles. Dandruff is removed from the head, the Teeth whitened and cleans d. Plate and Jewelry cleaned, Stains effectually removed from Carpets, Furniture, Clothes, Paint, Varnish or Marble, with the greatest facility and without injury to the material. It is a great saving of time and labor in washing clothes. It is the only known Soap which will wash Flannels with the ease of cotton or linen without fulling or shrinking. All these important objects can be effected without injury to the skin or the most delicate fabrics. It possesses no deleterious qualities whatever. The world is challenged to produce a soap which possesses so many valuable properties and which is so innocuous and safe. It is a home invention, and defies competition in any part of the world. It has become a necessity in Memphis, and its use is rapidly spreading throughout the South, and eventually will extend over the Yankee States, North and South America, Europe, Asia, Africa and Oceanica. Manufactured solely by C. P. McGimsey, Memphis, Tenn., and sold at the following places in the city at wholesale and retail: Page & Co.'s, Dean's, Tayler's Drug Store, Poplar street; King's, corner of Third and Adams; Oliver & Co.'s DeSoto Block, Madison street; will soon be found at any respectable family grocery or drug store. The proprietor is determined that its manufacture shall keep pace with the rapidly extending demand for its use. au16

THE MEMPHIS APPEAL

For the Memphis Appeal.]

THE OLD MAN AT REST.

The Old Man laid to rest!
The weary weight of life
Uplifted from his breast!
Peace! how supremely blest,
Crowns at the last his seventy years of strife!

Oh, thou chivalric soul!
Brave heart, to beat no more!
Beyond Fate's harsh control,
Safe at the victor's goal,
Pilgrim! thy staff thou needest never more!

Triumphant over all
The griefs of man's estate,
No peril may appal,
Nor phantom hope recall,
Captive who once hath burst his prison gate.

Oh! ten and three-score years,
With burdens sore to bear—
Hopes ever clothed with fears,
Loves ever dimmed by tears,—
Where now your conquest for the sleeper there?

For while I sit to-night,
In presence of the dead,
Eternal Truth and Right
No longer hid from sight,
Make glad the vision of the spirit fled.

SILVESTRE.

For the Memphis Appeal.]

GIVE A KIND WORD TO THE ERRING.

BY CARRIE BELL SINCLAIR.

Give a kind word to the erring!—
It may raise a fallen brother;
And the law of Heaven teaches
We should kindly treat each other!
All the paths of vice are many,
And when tempted, and when tried,
Thou art mortal, and remember
That thy feet may turn aside!

Give a kind word to the erring
Who have trod the path of sin;
For the tempter, too, may woo thee,
And thy feet may walk therein!
All along Life's rugged highway,
Stones are bruising weary feet;
Thistles spring among the flowers—
Tares are growing with the wheat.

And the Master in His vineyard
Bids a work for thee to do!
For the harvest there is plenteous,
But the labourers are few!
Tarry not!—the day is waning,
And the night is drawing on;
And the Father will reward thee
For the labour thou hast done.

If from out one bleeding bosom
Thou hast plucked the bitter thorn,
Or hast cheered a drooping spirit
When its every hope was gone;—
If thy hand is stretched in kindness
To lead straying, erring feet—
There's a rich reward awaits thee,
And Love's labour—oh, how sweet!

If along some rugged pathway
Thou hast raised a drooping flower;
If thy smile hath ever brightened
For one heart a gloomy hour;—
It hath placed a star to glitter
In the angel-crown above!
For Life's mission here is holy,
When we make it one of love!

Oh, remember, then, the erring!
Thou may'st lift the soul aright;
And from some poor, bleeding bosom
Wipe away the guilty stain!
Ah! this world's one vast vineyard,
Where there's work for all to do;
For the harvest there is plenteous—
But the labourers are few!
Work, then, work!—Life's sun is setting,
And the night of Death comes on;
And the Master, at His coming,
Will expect thy work well done!
